Exciting Augmented Reality (AR) technology takes dino-digging into the 21st century. AR works by overlaying digital information on a real world environment using the camera on a smartphone or tablet, combined with intelligent object recognition software. We are thrilled to introduce AR technology in three of our most popular Dig a Dinosaur products. The realistic graphics generate awesome, interactive, and very much hungry dinosaurs, right on kids' screens!

The unearthing of the skeleton is the same time-tested, and kid-approved, Dig a Dinosaur process of carefully removing the bones one at a time from their ancient resting place. Clear and easy-to-follow multi-lingual instructions help kids assemble their prehistoric find with a satisfied smile. Expose the dinosaur to a light source and the bones will glow in the dark; a soft, comfortable, familiar light in the room as kids drift off to sleep.

All new this year, the armoured Stegosaurus, tank-like Triceratops, and of course, the mighty Tyrannosaurus Rex kits each feature a buried test tube containing trace remains of dinosaur DNA, in sticker form. First, the DNA has to be decoded and ordered correctly by placing the stickers on the marked cardboard, then the completed DNA chain AR code is scanned into a smartphone or tablet and the realistic 3D AR dinosaur springs to life on the screen. Intelligent touch-screen functions and special features stimulate imaginations while providing enhanced educational opportunities with interactive media.
